

The Tragidie

I haue last calld me all these bitter name.

Qu. Mar. Why so I did, but look for no reply;
O let me make the period to my curse.

Glo. Tis done by me and ends by Margret.
Thus haue you breathid your curse against your selfe.

Qu. Ma. Poore painid Queen, vaine floutish of my son,
Why strewst thou sugar one that botled spider,
Whose deadly web entwines thee about?
Foole foole thou wher'st a knife to kill thy selfe,
The time will come when thou shal wish for me,
To helpe thee curle that poisoned bunch backe toade.

Hast. False botling woman, end thy franticke curse,
Leaft to thy harme thou moue our patience.

Qu. Ma. Foule Dame vpon you, you haue all thow'd me.
Ri. Were you well sett'd you would be caughte your due.

Qu. Ma. To serue me well, you should doe me dutie,
Teach mee to bee your Queen, and you my subiects:
Obserue me well and teach your selues that dutie.

Dors. Dispute not with her she is histrionique.

Qu. Ma. Peace master Marquette, you are malapert,
Your fire-new floupe of hotlout is scarpes currant;
O that your young nobility could judge,
What t' were to loose it and be miserable?
They that stand high, haue many blasphe to shake them,
And if they fall they dash hem to peices.

Glo. Good counsell maistrie, learne it, learne it Marques,
Dors. It toucheth you (my Lord) as much as me.

Glo. Yea, and much more, but I was borne so high,
Our aery buildeith in the Cedars top,
And dallies with the wnde, and scornes the sunne.

Qu. Ma. And turves the Sunne to shade, alas, alas,
Witnes my sunne now in the shade of death,
Whose bright ou shiring beames, thy cloudy wrath,
Hath in eternall darkenesse soulded vp:
Your aery buildeith in our aeries neast,
O God that feest it, doe not suffer it:

As it was won with blood, lost be it so.

Buck. Haue done for shame, if not for charity,
Qu. M. Vrgeneither charity nor shame to me,

of Richard the Third.

Vncharitably with me haue you dealt,
And shamefully by you my hopes are butchered,
My charity is outrage, like my shame,
And in my shame shall haue my sorrowes rage.

Buck. Haue done,

Qu. Mar. O princely Buckingham, I will kisse thy hand,
In signe of league and amity with thee:
Now faire besall thee and thy Princely house,
Thy garments are not spotted with our blood,
Nor thou within the compasse of my curse.

Buck. Nor none heere for curses natuer passe
The lips of them that breath them in the aire.

Qu. Mar. He nor beleeue but they assend the skie,
And there awake Gods gentle sleeping peace.
O Buckingham beware of yonder dog,
Looke when he faunes he bites, and when he bites,
His venome tooth will rankle thee to death,
Haue not to doe with him, beware of him.
Sinne, death, and hell haue set their markes on him.
And all their ministres attend on him.

Glo. What doth she say my Lord of Buckingham?

Buck. Nothing that I respect my gracious Lord.

Qu. Mar. What doest thou scorne me for my gentle coun-
And sooth the dullest that I wotte thee from? (sell,
O but rememb're this another day,
When he shall split thy very heart with sorrow,
And say poore Margret was a Prophetesse:
Lieue each of you, the subiect of his hate,
And he to you, and all of ye to Gods. Exit.

Hast. My haire doth stand an end to heare her curses.

Ri. And so doth mine, I wonder shees at liberty?

Glo. I cannot blaine her by Gods holy mother,
She hath had too much wrong, and I repent
My part thereof that I haue done.

Hast. I never did her any to my knowledge,

Glo. But you haue all the vantage of this wrong,
I was too hot to doe some body good,
That is to cold in thinking one it now:
Marry as for Clarence, hee is well repayd,
